Governing documents and financial information will be provided upon request.

The Cardiovascular Innovation Institute (CII) focuses on the discovery, development and implementation of innovative treatments for cardiovascular disease. This is done through a progressive collaboration between the University of Louisville and Jewish Hospital/St. Mary's Healthcare. CII builds on the success of both organizations' previous efforts to combat heart disease and heart failure through development of ventricular assist devices, artificial hearts and much more.

The main goal of CII is to foster a highly collaborative integrated, multi-disciplinary world-class enterprise encompassing basic, translational, and clinical and population research in cardiovascular disease affecting individuals from pre-natal life to death. This is also the goal of the National Institutes of Health and has been identified as the most important area of medical research for the next decade.
